European Specialty Examination in Nephrology ESENeph

Since February 2020 the Specialty Certificate Examination (SCE) in Nephrology and the European Certificate in Nephrology that was originally developed between the UEMS Renal Section and Boards and the European Renal Association (ERA) became a single examination called the European Specialty Examination in Nephrology (ESENeph).

The European Specialty Examination in Nephrology (ESENeph) represents a crucial standardised assessment for nephrology professionals, focusing on kidney function and diseases. This exam, a collaborative effort between the UEMS Renal Section and Boards, the European Renal Association (ERA), the UK Kidney Association, and the Federation of the Royal Colleges of Physicians of the UK. ESENeph evaluates the expertise and proficiency of individuals in nephrology. Recognised by the UK General Medical Council (GMC) as a pivotal assessment for Renal Medicine trainees in the UK, the ESENeph is integral for obtaining a Certificate of Completion of Training (CCT) and joining the Specialist Register for Renal Medicine in the UK and across Europe. There is no eligibility requirements for international candidates.

The ESENeph is delivered every 9 months, it utilises a 'best of five' multiple-choice question format. This approach not only tests core knowledge but also examines the candidate's ability to interpret information and resolve clinical issues. Each question offers one correct answer among four plausible but less accurate alternatives.

The pass mark for the ESENeph is set using a benchmark based on the performance of exam candidates in previous years. This standardised pass mark may vary annually, depending on the exam's difficulty level each year.
